

Are you an exceptional talent?

We have an excellent challenge for four engineers with outstanding potential!

Atlas Copco Tools and Assembly Systems Motor Vehicle Industry Division is a leading supplier of hand-held electric and pneumatic tools, assembly systems and software to the automotive industry. With customer centres in many parts of the world, the company offers a complete range of products and services as well as global project management for multi-national customers. Headquartered in Stockholm, Sweden, the division is part of the Industrial Technique Business Area.

Job description / Mission

This is a great opportunity if you are in the beginning of your career and want to work in an international and entrepreneurial environment. We are looking for four talents who can contribute to our growth and who strive for long-term development within our organisation.

You will have overall responsibility for a range of our assembly products dedicated to the Motor Vehicle Industry. This includes responsibility for target markets, product development, marketing, market development and support to the eleven customer centres worldwide, in matters of product and field sales activities. You will also work closely with the technical development and support teams.

Experience requirements

The people we are looking for hold an MSc in Engineering. You can be newly graduated or have a few years of working experience within marketing and/or industry. You need to have international experience from studying or working abroad.

We believe you have great potential and the ability to combine a genuine technical interest with good sense of business. You also have a strong drive to achieve set goals and to succeed, and you take pride in doing a good job. We expect you to be fluent in English and one more European or Asian language.
